Overview

• The ILO and cooperatives
• Statistical challenges regarding cooperatives
• Current activities and way forward
The ILO and cooperatives

• 1919 Albert Thomas, ILO’s first DG, developed close relations with the cooperative movement

• 1920 Establishment of the Cooperative Branch

• 1966 Recommendation No. 127 on the promotion of cooperatives in developing countries is adopted

• 1998 The Decent Work Agenda

• 2002 Recommendation No. 193 on the promotion of cooperatives is adopted

• 2004 ICA and ILO sign Memorandum of Understanding

• 2009 Great recession and cooperatives
The ILO promotes the cooperative business model to create and maintain sustainable enterprises, offering jobs that not only provide income but also pave the way for broader social and economic advancement, strengthening individuals, their families and communities.

Labour market info and analysis systems

- A network of institutions (persons) with agreed roles to produce and disseminate labour market information and analysis

- Core functions (not mutually exclusive):
  - Labour market analysis
  - Monitoring and reporting on employment and labour policies
  - Exchange information or coordinate producers/users

- Core components:
  - Collection and compilation of data and information
    - Database with standard set of indicators such as the ILO’s Key Indicators of the Labour Market (www.ilo.org/kilm), the MDG employment indicators or the ILO’s Decent Work Indicators
  - Institutional arrangements and networks

The ILO Framework on the Measurement of Decent Work covers ten substantive elements corresponding to the four strategic pillars of the Decent Work Agenda:

- full and productive employment
- rights at work
- social protection
- promotion of social dialogue

Sources of labour statistics:

- surveys of households
- surveys of establishments
- administrative data

Legal information (laws, regulations, enforcement, etc.)

Statistics on cooperatives in the International Conference of Labour statisticians (ICLS)

Resolution 3 adopted by the International Conference of Labour Statisticians, October 2013, recommends that the Office:

(a) in cooperation with the ILO’s constituents and interested national statistical offices, carry out further developmental work on the measurement of cooperatives through administrative registers, establishment or household surveys;

(b) carry out pilot studies in interested countries, to test various measurement approaches;

(c) prepares a progress report for discussion at the 20th International Conference of Labour Statisticians, in accordance with its agenda and taking account of decisions taken by the Governing Body, to provide further guidance on the subject.
Statistics on cooperatives: way forward

- Strengthening/expanding on methodologies based on registers (administrative information); work undertaken by ICA, CICOPA, others

- New/revised methods to produce statistics based on household surveys (pilots, on-going activities)
  New sets of questions on workers in cooperatives and members of cooperatives

- New methods to produce statistics based on establishment surveys (pilots, on-going activities)
  Expand existing questions on “legal status”/ “legal form of organization”; or create a set of questions regarding organization, voting arrangements, etc.
